

Designing for Dignity and Claiming Our Power: Ownership, Empowerment, and Transformation with Sustainable Buildings

Who we are

NAACP members, our primary base

External partners, our allies in the work

Why this?

Why now?

Why us?

"Sustainability without equity is sustaining inequity."

Panelist, CESBS Initiative Launch Summit

Policy change at all levels

From local ordinances to state affordable housing guidelines to Federal funding

Justice, equity, diversity & inclusion in the professions

From early childhood education to diverse CEOs

Shifting the narrative

Reclaiming our stories and space in the movement

"Transition is inevitable. Justice is not."

Quinton Sankofa, Movement Generation

What does equitable architectural design look like?

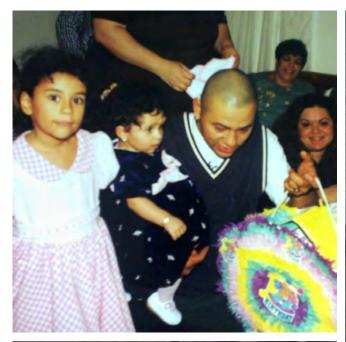

What does equitable program design look like?

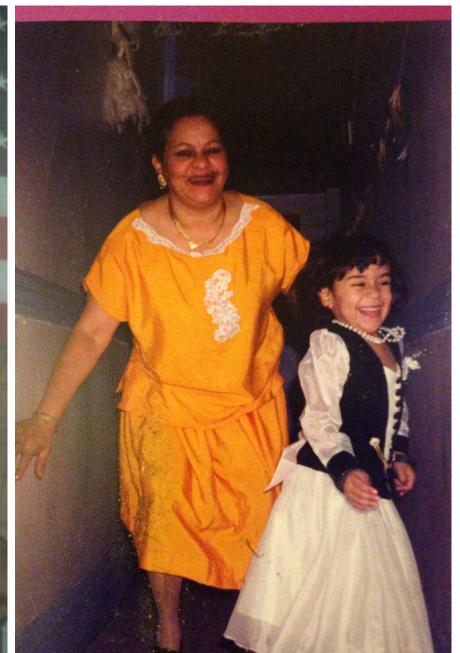

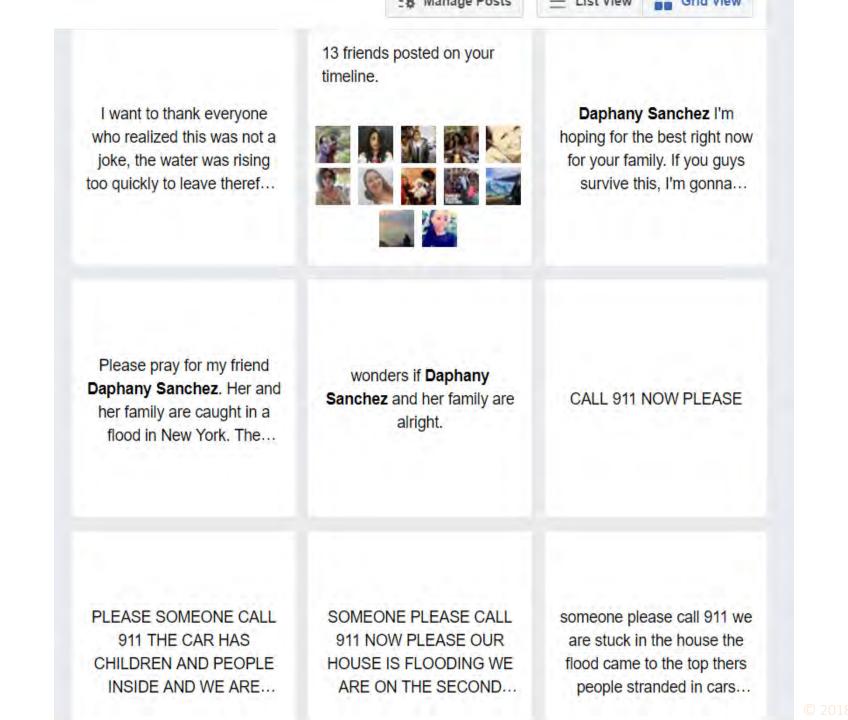

© 2018 Kinetic Communities Consulting

© 2018 Kinetic Communities Consulting

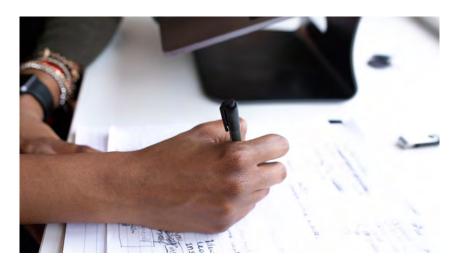

Work with utility & government agencies to develop energy efficiency solutions that provide financial, environmental, housing, and health benefits to New Yorkers who need it the most.

We use data to develop strategic engagement strategies and tools to catalyze positive relationships with energy. KC<sup>3</sup> works on projects throughout the State of New York.

We work in the intersection of finance, engineering, planning, and organizing; a sweet spot that helps us understand how to systemically drive change for a just clean energy transition.

External engagement takes work

Example Project

ElectrifySI

Community Collaboration

The goal of the project is to install Air Source Heat Pumps.

The community has voiced concerns of businesses closing, increased competition with large contracting firms. Nonprofit organizations directly & indirectly engaged in efficiency (housing, social services, education, and workforce development) are engaged to share for program and/or policy they are advocating for their communities in Staten Island.

Resources are allocated 50% to administrators and 50% to local partners on the island.

The program goals have been set by island leaders. ElectrifySI is set to prioritize BIPOC homeowners, including those that are going through the 1st time homeowner program to incorporate ASHP into their purchase. It is also set to prioritize MWBE residential contractors who are traditionally under engaged within the energy sector, connect them to business operational training and support with SBS and ASHP training through the manufacturers.

The overall goal of this project is to support BIPOC communities begin to develop intergenerational wealth from within their own communities.

Designing for Dignity and Claiming Our Power

- Ownership, empowerment, and transformation with sustainable buildings
- Understanding the intersection of energy, equity, and housing

We are all we need: Get involved

NAACP members

Volunteer or recommend someone to chair a working group
Volunteer or recommend someone for our Black leadership advisory group
Let us know what you want and need
Spread the word within and between units

External partners

Help us sustain ourselves through funding Spread the word, particularly to professionals of color in the sector tackling these issues

Everyone!

Join our mailing list

Join a monthly working group

Request a speaker or training

Let us know if you have a relevant project or policy campaign
Use our resources

Lonnie Feemster,
President, Reno Sparks NAACP #1112
Vice President, NAACP Tri-State
Conference Idaho/Nevada/Utah
Nevada State Director, NAACP National
Voter Fund
Ionnielfeemster@netscape.net

Daphany Rose Sanchez,
Executive Director, Kinetic Communities
Consulting
NAACP Centering Equity in the Sustainable Building Sector Participant
info@kc3.nyc

